The strength of CHARACTER edition

Foreword

This year the Omega will stress some of the basic elements that help to comprise Character. Character has been defined as the aggregate of distinctive qualities belonging to an individual or race--the stamp of individuality impressed by nature, by education, and by habit. It must be remembered that the core of character is the sum total of a person's worth. What qualities, what traits help to fashion the characteristics of the individual? Throughout these pages we will try to illustrate various components of our character and how these traits influence and guide our lives as students and eventually, as future, productive citizens.

All The World's A Stage

The stage is set....as the curtain rises there is a brief hesitation before the class of '67 plunges into its fourth and final act here at Brilliant Memorial High. The audience is tense with anticipation--will these Seniors be worthy of the name? Indeed, with God in our hearts and sweat on our brows, we know so.

Throughout our four years of guidance, we have grown in wisdom and understanding and have come to realize that the world truly is a stage....and we its actors. We have assumed our individual roles in the play of "Life" and are striving for the best.

Soon this--as every act--will draw to an end....the curtain will descend and the lights will dim. Will this be "THE END" for us? No!--only the omega--"the end of the beginning." Now we find ourselves thrust from our protective stage onto one with a greater scope--one which will require superior performance of us....a new "Life."

With this in mind--we, the Omega Staff, present this year's annual as a living tribute to the players of 1966-67. We sincerely wish them luck in their future acts and hope that the memories preserved throughout these pages will remain forever in their hearts.

In Dedication . . .

Throughout these few years of high school, which comprised such an important era of our lives, our sponsors and advisors have stood faithfully behind us in our many successes and failures. These three diligent persons not only fulfilled their own separate duties as educators, but also took the time to sponsor and support our senior class; for this we are very grateful and wish to show them our deepest gratitude and appreciation.

To our very deserving sponsors Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Louk, and Mr. Yaskich, who have accomplished a great deal in helping us both physically and mentally through their classes and counsel, we, the annual staff, wish to dedicate to them our 1967 edition of the OMEGA.

MRS. IMOGENE LOUK

After teaching in many schools throughout the area, Mrs. Louk came to Brilliant High School in 1962. She graduated from Fairmont College with an A. B. degree in Physical Education and is now carrying out her life work with us. Our class advisor for three successful years, she has also been the G.A.A. advisor and helped with the Junior and Senior plays. Mrs. Louk gives our class this message.

"To strive, to seek, to find, but not to yield." This is a motto which will guide you through the phase of your life beginning with high school graduation.

Youths of today are the leaders of tomorrow---the teacher, the secretary, the nurse, the executive, the laborer. In the future you must be able to think, act, and progress together. Your past highschool experiences have prepared you to accept responsibility and to stabilize that future. To each of you I extend best wishes for success and happiness.

".....a great group of students--finest that I have had the privilege of working with."

Our great basketball coach, who has led us to many victories both scholastically and athletically, is Mr. Yaksich. A graduate of Bethany College, he taught at Adena before coming to Brilliant in 1964.

Mr. Yaksich crowned our Mr. & Miss Basketball candidates during the Adena game. He also gave up his spare time going to Oglebay Park to help make our prom a success.

Although we have to leave, we may hear the name. Mr. Rudy Yaksich, mentioned many times in the future, not as a coach but as a writer.

MRS. SONJA ARMSTRONG

"As a class they have fulfilled their goal. . .graduation. Now they have to decide on individual goals and strive to reach these goals in today's world."

Mrs. Armstrong, a graduate of Ashland College, came to our school in 1961 after teaching one year at Savannah, Ohio. She became one of our sponsors when we were in the seventh grade along with Mrs. Hobson and Mr. Henderson. In our Junior year, Mrs. Armstrong was our advisor and led us in having a successful prom.

Leaving is a sad event; but there will be more students whom Mrs. Armstrong will lead. We owe a lot to Mrs. Armstrong for all the time and effort she has devoted to us. We leave you, Mrs. Armstrong with two words: Thank You.

Of A Very Special Time . . .

. . . at a very special place

To see these walls, one would not imagine that character could be obtained from within this structure of concrete and steel. The brick foundations have heard the clatter of swift feet to catch late classes. They represent a systematic basis for learning--compiling additional data upon data--a solid background for the future is in process.

Our teachers, disciples of prudence, integrity, and loyalty, have nurtured and instilled within us their knowledge, which has enriched our lives, unmeasurably. This enlightenment will make it possible for future generations to carry on in the same splendid manner of our generation.

We also take with us another virtue--friendship, the element binding each block of education, which molds the combined structure into one solid edifice from which life's endeavors may originate.

Indeed, to leave this building is sad--and on looking back, fond memories are recollected. But still the future must be sought, and the past remains--just a memory. Character, our new inherent quality has been achieved, and to these walls, our thanks!

REFLECTIONS

The Time has come--as the curtain slowly closes, another class continues its Journey through Time . . .

"May I take your tickets, please--I'll show you to your seats."

"Thank you!"

Time--the years, days, and minutes have passed by so quickly that it seems as if you had just stepped back again at your old Alma Mater. As you sit in the plush, comfortable seats, waiting for the beginning of the show, you begin to reminisce--nostalgia seems to engulf you and you begin to recall those happy memories of your high school life here at P.H.S. Gradually these reflections fall in order and you begin to remember. . .

Officially entering P.H.S. as the freshman class of 1963 we began our plans for a magnificent year. We were kept quite busy building our treasury with returns from book sales, magazine sales, and shoe sales, coupled with "voluntary" gifts of academic data. With the close of the year we reluctantly bade farewell to our departing senior, Mr. Robert Henderson, who had served and advised us for the past three years with clear vision and a constant guiding hand. We anticipated our sophomore year with the hope of continued success, as we ended the first quarter of our high school life.

The autumn of 1964 brought Mr. Rudy Yesschenko, Mr. Mrs. Irene G. Cook and Mrs. Sonia Armstrong as our sophomore class sponsors. Under their direction we sold sweatshirts emblazoned with the Blue Devils design which was our major money making project for that year. January arrived and we sponsored the first Mr. and Mrs. Leatha, Connors; the seventh grade candidates received the honors and were crowned during the ball game of the Adco game. In March, to celebrate the coming of spring we held a golf at Rattrick's day, since the weather was appropriate we dressed in green and white. The evening was a total success--the gremlins, the wee people, and even the leprechauns went home--agast!

Soon we entered our all-important junior year. The ordering of our class rings was only one segment of this eventful phase of our school career. Selling candy during lunch and at football and basketball games, we worked feverishly toward our long-awaited prom. The evening of April the fifteenth was set as the date and the main room at Oglesby Park was reserved. Titled "Roman Holiday," giant white pillars draped with lavender curtains, a huge Roman chariot, and statues of golden graces beamed decorate the room. The evening was highlighted by the traditional crowning of the prom king and queen, Bruce Gorman and Pat Shipley majestically attended their thrones and reigned over the remainder of the evening. Our junior prom was considered by juniors, seniors and guests alike to be one of the most elegant proms in the history of our school. April also brought on the production of our class play, "Kind Lady"; with various vocal opinions ringing in our ears, class adjourned.

September came much to the regret of many and we entered our fourth and final year at P.H.S.--as seniors. This year we retired from money making projects and concentrated on having a successful year both academically and socially. During the

The Lilac

A symbol of faith, promise for the future, beauty, simplicity, and purity

You can still remember that day--the joys, the tears, the hopes, the cheers, the many faces, glad and sad, and the mixed emotions. You wondered where your life would lead you--fear overcame you, but then you remembered that passage in your yearbook--the one which was like a warm, send off into the old world. You can still "see" those meaningful words. . . .

. . . ., and now our school career is at a end. Although we realize this is only our omega, feelings of regret fill our hearts on leaving these halls which have housed us during the most important years in our lives. We find it hard to tear ourselves away from the happiness we have known here, but it is our destiny. The path of life, lined with overpowering obstacles, continues to beckon us onward; we invite the challenge of the future and come to meet this challenge with courage and heart-felt emotion.

Yes, time has passed--it is gone, never to be returned, but memories live on, never to be forgotten. The time has come--as the curtain slowly closes, another class continues its journey through time.

first part of this month, disorder reigned throughout the entire school, as students reunited, organizations reorganized, and teams re-formed. Our senior class was no exception to this rule of confusion as we hurriedly called meetings to elect officers, adopt a motto and flower, and repeat the many other parliamentary procedures, but at long last--order prevailed.

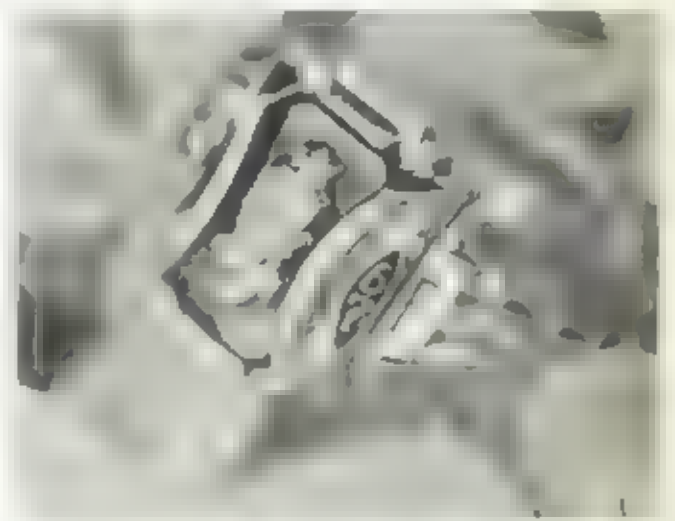

A beautiful autumn day in October saw our classmate, Kathy Dolan, crowned "Homecoming Queen 1966." all stood in reverent silence as the notes of the Alma Mater echoed through the stadium, and into the hearts of all present. A week later, we staged our last production, "Blithe Spirit," which, thanks to our director, was an overwhelming triumph, displaying our true qualities of ingenuity, intellect, and perseverance. Tradition at Brilliant Memorial High includes the selection of a "Mr. and Miss B.H.S."--two students who have been a credit to our class, school, and community and would dutifully represent these. These worthy students were named, by the vote of the student body--Roy Nichols and Sharon Kourim. We then looked with keen anticipation toward the Christmas formal--our last performance, as a class, for the school; to the satisfaction of all, it was a complete success. Through these months also, the annual staff was busily compiling the 1967 edition of the Omega. The work was hard, but so rewarding and we all felt we had gained something by taking part in this great journalistic endeavor.

During this year, as every other, we cheered our boys in blue and white on--upward, onward, to victory, was one of our many cries. Racing down the field, dribbling up the court, straining for a pin, sprinting to win a race, and dashing for the safety of "home," our boys did their best to win, and we stood faithfully and proudly behind them in their many attempts.

Spring arrived all too quickly and before we realized it, the prom, a beautiful and lavish affair with touches of Camelot, was over and we were faced with what we recognized as our omega--graduation.

MR. FRED R. LONG
Buckeye Local District Superintendent

Progress is our most

By

Susan Fronckel and Rose Marie Duda

In a recent interview with Mr. Fred R. Long, our District Superintendent, the following comments and ideas were afforded. We present them to you for your enlightenment.

The improvement of the curriculum in our district schools has been the main objective, after all, as Mr. Long pointed out, "that's what we are here for." This includes the addition of an art program in elementary and secondary schools, and improved foreign language classes in both high school and elementary levels. The junior high program has also been expanded; offering such classes as home economics, industrial arts, and formal reading classes. To create an opportunity for the pre-school child, a kindergarden was provided with the opening of our new elementary building.

In the lines of reconstruction, an immense amount of time and money has been spent in putting our older buildings in a more useful condition. This letter from the Board of Education to the public is a guide to the future.

"In addition," stated Mr. Long, "an educational survey has been conducted by the Board of Education and the use of present facilities is in the hands of the Buckeye Board of Education. When the Board has been advised to study the proposed courses of action, the public will be aptly informed."

Our faculty has been a great one, and our teaching staff is of a high quality and suffices our needs. We have lost one teacher due to retirement and transfer to other districts, but our overall teaching staff is of a high quality and suffices our needs.

Concerning future consolidation projects, the introduction of a greater number of high school students is foreseen in the hands of the Board. Mr. Long further stressed the growing need for a broader vocational program; the college or business bound student is provided for, quite extensively, in our schools; while the student wishing to enter vocational training is somewhat hampered. Guidance is another great concern of Mr. Long's. In the opinion of Mr. Long, it should be in the area of guidance from kindergarten through high school. We need to improve our program for the low income children and the gifted child, thereby, further stimulating and developing the resources of the mind.

With keen anticipation, Mr. Long and the Board of Education have set their sights toward the new horizons of the future, when their plans and dreams will become realities. We, the students, wait this time also, with exuberance and anticipation, knowing that we are the subjects who will eventually reap the full harvest of their efforts and plans.

The Wondrous Traits of a TEACHER

By
Rose Marie Duda

The faculty, an element of great importance in any school system must have qualified and dedicated teachers. Who is the teacher?

- an animated performer reading Shakespeare.
- a patient math teacher explaining a problem four times.
- a curious analytical thinker exploring the wonders of science.
- a genius creating tasty tid-bits for open house.
- a persevering English teacher helping a boy to discover the beauties of literature.
- a diligent news follower debating a possibility with a student.
- a sympathetic friend listening to pressing problems.

Knowledge. .Patience. .Guts

Now we have cited a few examples of the teachers at work, but this is not all of which goes into the making of one of these rare individuals. In the teacher, there is the great love of learning; the art of knowing how and when to suggest, the knowledge required to teach his particular subject, the acquired art of listening and being able to communicate, and mere love of his career. These are some of the many qualities of a good teacher; qualities our faculty possess.

Behind these pictures lie the apparent or hidden character of our educators as they attempt to impart to us, the student, their affluent storehouse of knowledge. The pensive, thoughtful, meditative, analytical, enthusiastic, thought provoking, encouraging, complex, demanding, timely, colorful, and sometimes unforgettable expressions are indigenous factors in their overall makeup which depict the unique profile of a teacher.

Known As: The Best-The Most

What adds more to the excitement of the final months of high school, than the selecting of the people with the "mostest" in our class? You may not have realized what qualities and abilities our classmates possess--but now the truth comes out--and our real CHARACTERS are revealed. Could someone so cute really be that smart? Could someone so shy really be that friendly? Could someone perennially late, really be that dependable?

Who opened the doors for over-burdened teachers? (Ugh! - a ghastly thought!) Who always put their best foot forward? Who brightened the room with their wit and their very presence? Undoubtedly, the answer must be, our Seniors! Now we know! Look on the basketball court and who would you find? Look almost anywhere around the school for busy students; among these you will find acquaintances you will never forget.

Yes, these are fellow classmates, but only a small representative group. We know that every senior possesses some fraction of these qualities which help to make our class one of the most unique.

Homecoming

By Steve Williams

The day of wild parties and proms is a time of special occasion for the game we usually call homecoming. This year the event has been marked with great success by both the student body and the athletic teams. The reason for our arch-rival Mingo was the opponent of the day.

Two o'clock on the sunny day of Friday afternoon saw thousands of football fans filling the stands to witness the kickoff. A powerful cheer filled with confidence rose from the Blue Devil stands. The game had begun.

Play by play the team worked their way through the first and the second quarters, backed by the cheering of the stands, every member of the squad gave his all to gain the advantage, especially the seniors. And their efforts were rewarded at the half with Brilliant leading 6-0.

The halftime show brought in the homecoming court and he led with four candidates: Gretchen Carney, Kathy Dolan, Sharon Korman, and Kay Baker. The road band of the Blue Devils, from the late Great Lakes, performed for the attendees followed with Linda McCarty, last year's queen, bringing the procession to an end. As the Blue Devil band played "The Show of Your School"

1966 HOMECOMING QUEEN

A Sparkling Queen And Her Court Reigned Radiantly

Linda crowned Kathy Dolan Homecoming Queen of 1966 and in a flurry of kisses, tears, and roses, the queen and her court left the field to watch the final half of the game.

From their vantage point they witnessed an outpouring of strength and struggle such as the mighty Blue Devils had never shown in any of its past performances. The team carried out every play as if it were the deciding point of the game. They wanted this win more than anything and were bound and determined to get it. The sweat and toil was worth it. The last half saw the Indians lose all hopes of winning and the Blue Devils bounded home with a 14-0 victory.

To this was the most satisfying day for the football team and football fans of B.H.S., the homecoming dance followed that evening. In past seasons when we had not been victorious in the homecoming game, the evening's gaieties had been for the crowning of our queen, but this year it gained added importance as we reveled in our triumph over Mingo.

The old grads who we had noticed during the activities of that afternoon game seemed glad to have the happiness of our success. We were mutually glad to see them again as they had been gone a long time either away at college or in the service. Perhaps seeing friends victorious and getting reacquainted with everyone brought back memories and sentimental pangs of regret, too,---we'll never know.

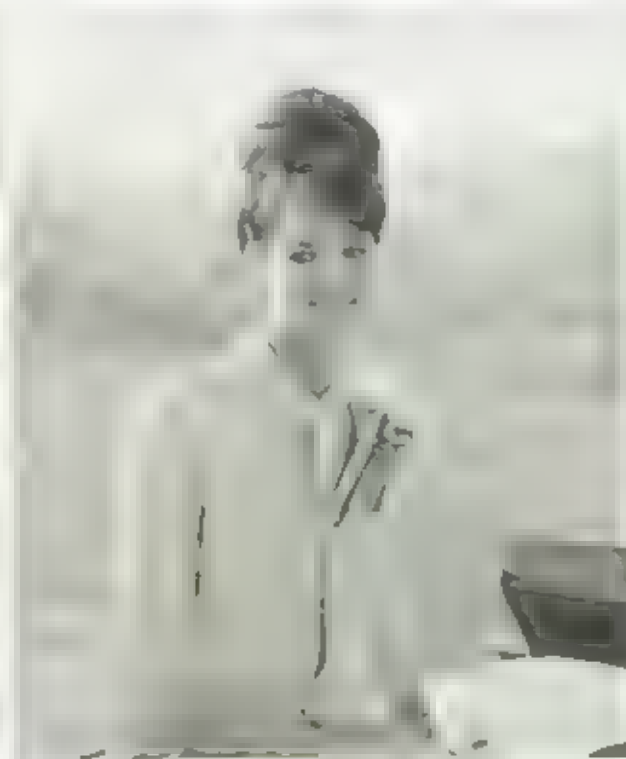

The evening was a total success for everyone and with the end thoughts of the day's game which had temporarily drifted away during the ceremony returned. The 1966 football squad had accomplished a feat no other team in the history of our school had done. With this in mind, the homecoming truly was a triumphant success.

NEW THINGS are Happening In Phys Ed.

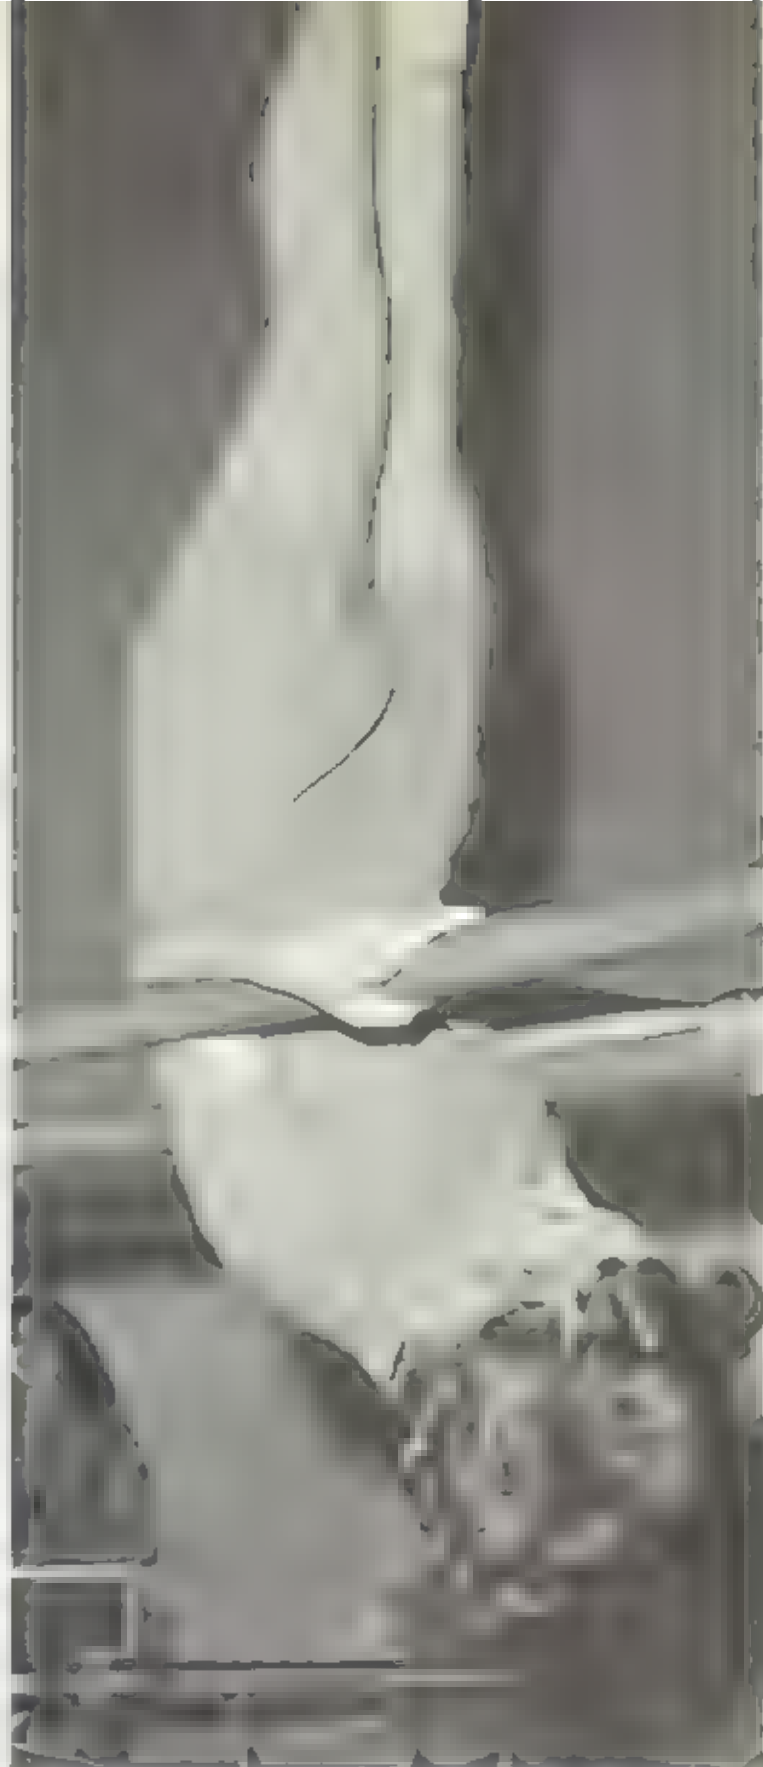

On the floor there appears flashes of BLUE charging from the locker rooms of Brilliant High School. It is now Tuesday, and time for girls physical education classes. We participate in numerous activities. Among these many sports played are kickball, volleyball, baseball, soccer, and hockey. Hockey is a comparatively new sport here at Brilliant High School.

Due to Mrs. Imogene Louk's genuine devotion, our physical education classes are very profitable: it helps to build our physical stamina; it provides us an opportunity for physical relaxation and fun--thereby building a sound body along with a sound mind.

Cast, STANDING: Michele Lawson, Joyce Fisher, Gary Kovach, Kathy Dolan, Sue Barker
SEATED, Corrie McKewey and Bob Jenkins

Scene conducted by Madame Arcand (Michele Lawson) in Act I

Mr. Scherach, play director, does a fitting gesture to Joyce Fisher . . . Hand me the hammer and chisel!

Players Present A Rousing Performance

This year, Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," produced by our senior class under the direction of Mr. Ray Scherich proved to be a tremendous success.

The mood of the play was set soon after the curtains parted, as the medium, Madame Arcadi, was summoned. Due to her bumbling efforts, a ghostly Elvira returns to plague Charles Condomine her husband, and his second wife Ruth.

Determined to transform Charles to her "damed astral plane," Elvira muddles in her homicidal efforts, and Ruth joins Elvira in her haunting of an irate husband, anxious to rid himself of two nagging wives.

The cast, selected entirely for CHARACTER value was praised by Mr. Scherich as "one of the best groups I've ever worked with."

Instrumental in the technical success of the play was the stage crew headed by Bill Gates and Charles Moore. The last minute addition of Elvira's moving stool, costume alterations, and lighting changes were only a few of the problems which the crew and staff overcame with a minimum of effort and confusion.

Yes--those five weeks meant a great deal of concentration, determination, and just plain hard work--but, as the cast agree, ".....we enjoyed every minute of it and wish we could repeat our performance!"

"Humm-m, says Pete, an interesting angle in any man's eye; however, the show must go on."

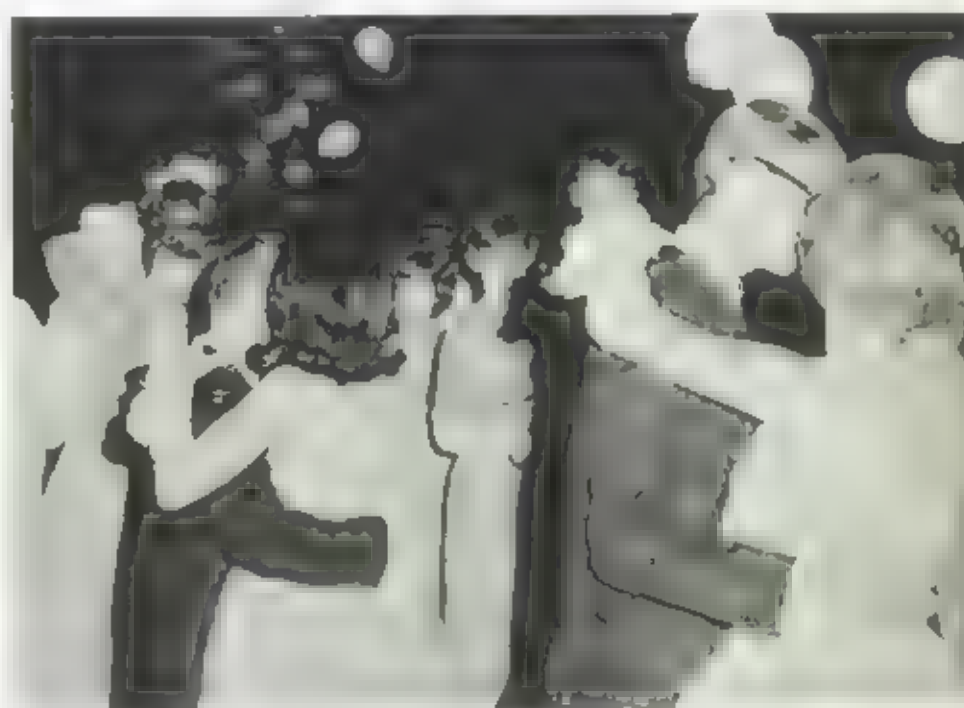

A timely "break" at between acts, only to find that more corrections, more adjustments must be made, before the curtain finally parts--and then the inevitable audience....will we be great, or will we just Be?

We Could Have Danced All Night

Prom '66

A "Roman Holiday" sent the senior class of 1966 to the beautiful Pine Room at Olgebay Park to enjoy an evening of music and dancing at our annual junior-senior prom. The gothic Roman pillars draped with lilac chiffon at the entrance and throne added the air of never-never land and made the few short hours spent there seem like a week in paradise.

But behind all this loveliness was a year of planning and work by we seniors, the junior class of 66. Beginning in September, we worked feverishly on a theme, decorations, and an orchestra, invitations, all through the fall and winter months. Fund raising was carried out by selling candy and other concessions at noon and at football and basketball games. We aspired to produce the most successful prom in the history of ole' B. H. S. and finally on April 15 success was had. In the summation of all our efforts, Bruce Graham and Pat Shipley were crowned king and queen, putting the final touch on the affair to make it THE perfect evening.

After the music had stopped though, there was still more excitement to be had as each charming couple hurried back to the after-glow party sponsored by the junior class mothers. Refreshments and still more music both soothing and exciting, kept the couples drifting in a state of happy celebration till the wee hours of the morning decreed it time to part company. A brief attempt at sleep then off again for everyone on the all day picnic which brought our "Roman Holiday" to a close.

What would our school be like without the clean warm, comfortable, and attractive rooms? And what would our meals be like without a well planned diet---which all comprises a healthy atmosphere for a healthy minded student body. In our busy and complex school program it is mandatory that these services be carried out in the best possible fashion by the best possible personnel in all the aspects mentioned. We, the graduating seniors, sincerely want to thank: our custodians, Mrs. Velma Butler, Mrs. Audrey Reynold, Mr. Wilbur Moore, and Mr. Marvin Frye; our dieticians, Mrs. Ada Goolsby and Mrs. Eunice Ashton for helping to mend and mind us during our school career at Brilliant High.

CLASSES

Our World Of Academic Enlightenment

By
Sheryl Williams

The bell rings and the stream of chattering students turn and head toward the waiting classrooms of Brilliant High. Our life of scholastic improvement begins for the day. Glancing into the classroom, one finds dozens of studious young men and women devotedly attending to their books while their instructor completes the tedious task of preparing the next day's work. One rarely takes time during the hustle and bustle of a busy classroom to consider the important events happening every day in each classroom. About thirty students and one teacher are getting an education. Take this fact and multiply by the twenty-two rooms in the building and your answer is the new generation--educated, aware, and prepared for life. Each class, each subject, each teacher, offers something different to the student, but when all the impressions and new knowledge, though different for each student, is combined the result is still the same; a more advanced mind beginning a sophisticated trend of thought which will lead the student to a worthwhile place in life. Day in day out, the process continues. Amidst the activity of sports and social events contending with fire drills, class meetings, lyceums, the teachers and students strive to complete the schedule of work for the year. They are endeavoring to fulfill the promise of education and step by step they are doing it.

Animations In Speech:

Animation is the speech principle that separates old fashion rhetoric from the modern oral communication. Recently, radicals in the field of speech-making have introduced a new way of vitalizing the old formal and conventional method of delivery. By using facial expressions, vocal variety, tempo, pitch, oral speaking, dialogue, monologue, and pantomimes, speech can now be effective and interesting.

During the spring of the year the Times Leader sponsors a Leaders of Tomorrows Contest for the Ohio Valley graduating seniors. Each school within the circulating district of the newspaper is qualified to elect one boy and one girl. The qualifications of the contestants are: leadership ability, high academic achievements, and outstanding moral and ethical integrity. Those students selected by their constituents of the graduating class of 1966 were Josephine Wszeborowski and Pete Adrian.

JOURNALISM: each effort will reap its own reward . . .

With its publications twice a month, the Flashes, our high school newspaper, attempts to keep both the school and community well-informed.

Stressing co-operative teamwork, the staff members assumed responsibility for a variety of tasks, ranging from feature writing to page lay-out. Meaningful experiences in Journalism and practical applications of newspaper techniques were the results.

Each effort reaps its own reward; for the student in Journalism this reward lies in the pleasure of seeing one's own writing published.

With the assistance of Mr. Andrew Suranovich, the Flashes staff strives "to please the reader."

The Great Blue Devil

Directed By Richard K.

The extracurricular music education of our high school student consists of individual lessons, small and large ensemble experience, and membership in the high school marching and concert bands. These experiences are planned to develop within the student a general knowledge of our music heritage, a thorough knowledge of his instrument and most important, a sound basis for the development of aesthetic appreciation for music.

The amount of time that each student voluntarily gives beyond his normal school day for this is most admirable, but this extra time has provided for the student a segment of education and experiences that could not have been learned elsewhere.

A Long . . . Long Day

Our music training for the school year begins in August when the marching band meets every day to prepare for the coming football season. "Keep that rank straight," - "Begin with the left foot," and many other choice statements can be heard time and time again as the marching band sharpens its precision. Finally, the football season is upon us and we grind our way through ten half-time shows. As soon as we complete the season we prepare for the concert season. It's a big switch from outdoor playing, and every student must now sharpen his play-abilities. "You're not in tune," "The dynamics are marked pianissimo," etc., have now replaced the shouts of left, right, left". While preparing for the concert season heavy concentration is channeled into three numbers that will be presented for the District Band Contest which could result in a trip to the State Contest. All too soon all of these events have taken place and the windup of the year begins with a Spring concert and the preparation for the graduation exercises. When one looks back at the various other activities such as the Jefferson County Music Festival, Christmas Parade, Pre-contest concert, etc. it isn't difficult to answer the question - "Where has the time gone"?

Thunderations, Doesn't He Know Anything But Work?

By Susan Fronckel & Rose Marie Duda

Who would have ever thought, that the illustrious members of the Omega Staff would be "working their fingers to the bone" during the afternoon and midnight sweatshop - shifts in the shadows of our belabored Omega room - 108? Indeed, Mr. G, doth murder sleep -- a plague on you and your crusty old ancestors.

Our work began the first day of school with the appointment of editors and business managers, along with feature writers and typists. Advertising crews were then organized, under the direction of Larry Weldon, and were assigned "areas." Although we got a "whole day" out of school for soliciting, most of us (especially our feet) wished we were back in class. "No, I'm sorry - we're almost bankrupt." There are just too many schools around here"! (We agreed) Then to actually GET an ad we had to promise to, "get all our appliances at Frank's, our cars at Riley's, our pills at Cavlier Pharmacy." (Just a hint to you juniors.) But our efforts were well rewarded and we finally collected our quota - just think--all from begging! Of course THAT was only the beginning.

Adam D. Goykovich, Advisor

Co-Editors, Rose Marie Duda and Susan Fronckel

"The gold-dust twins," what one thinks, the other writes, and what one writes, the other types. Their sense of duty to responsibility and leadership will undoubtedly make this publication an outstanding venture in the field of high school journalism.

Our brave and meritorious leader --without his diligent efforts we could not have accomplished the task of publishing this year-book.

The OMEGA Staff

CLOCKWISE, B. Evans, J. Spencer, M. Degenhardt, S. Williams, R. Duda, Mr. Goykovich, S. Fronckel, R. Wine, V. Hoyt, R. Walton, D. Ross, V. Frye, P. Fox.

Missing in the picture are: Sharon Furbee and Barbara Thompson--their services to this staff have been overwhelmingly immeasurable.

Soon we were arranging this advertising on paper - quite a tedious job. As soon as this was over, we all assumed our true positions. For Cookie and Vickie it was keeping track of all the ad money pouring in -- well trickling anyway. For Larry, his job completed, it meant becoming the Omega staff mascot. Rich had to take on his old stand-by as art editor. And of course, the typists began to type what the feature writers wrote, after the editors edited it ... and Mr. Goykovich made final approval.

When the cat's away, the mice will play - ask us? We can tell you about the night Jerry drove his car into the school and parked in front of the office -- he said, Mr. Berryhull asked him to stand guard. Then how about when Larry went swinging on the 108 door - right into Mr. Berryhull! (Seems Mr. Berryhull gets the worst of everything.) Some of us might remember Rhonda's trip to her mountain retreat with Bob Evans -- she took Mr. G.'s yardstick in safe measure.

Work? Well, we did some, quite a bit in fact, as we hope you can tell by observing our "finished product". There was always enough work for everyone, be it, composing articles, typing, constructing page designs, or just computing our assets and expenditures. Who are these night people who kept their eyes opened and their minds alert until ten or eleven o'clock at night, in order to meet a deadline? Who else? The Omega Staff!

Football

Heartaches and Hysteria

On a beautiful sun-lit afternoon amidst a couple thousand hoarse, excited fans, our invincible Golden-Blue Devils found themselves the proud victors over previously unbeaten Mingo Indians.

Guts . . . Heart And Determination

It is certainly true that this year's football team had nothing going for it but guts and determination. Size, an all important factor was generally missing. Our backfield tried valiantly for those extra yards but as the season wore on it became apparent that our team was succumbing to the lack of SPEED. The basic ingredient of experience, can in many ways, spell life or death for the fortunes of a football team. In our case, experience was a rare trait among our playersnot knowing how to snag a swift pass, when to "cut" or throw a "fake" can mean the difference between pay dirt and no gain.

The lack of experienced lettermen in the backfield of this year's squad was acute; only one regular returned. It was much the same story on the line. With sheer heart and desire we tried to make up the accumulative differences. Though every fiber of their bodies was straining for victory, in many cases, it was in vain. Rarely before has a football team at BHS had so much going against it, and yet, it turned in a reputable performance. The won-lost record certainly will not attest to this fact. They made the necessary sacrifices to play the sport, and play they did. Performance was their byline, and perform they did.

They knocked off last year's Eastern Ohio Athlete League champs in a "down to the wire" struggle on a dusty Adena field. They romped over their sole West Virginia opponent, Bishop Donahue, and smothered the Rival "Ramblers" of Tiltonsville in the seasons finale.

Victory or Defeat —

It's The Game That Counts, and anyway, there's always
Next Year

It can be said that the 1966 Blue Devil football team has one singular accomplishment one upward thrust towards the epitome of immortality one thing that no other team in the history of Brilliant High School can claim - they beat Mingo 14-0.

The Devils showed a definite lack of experience in this opening ballgame of the 1966 season. They allowed potentially powerful Mt. Pleasant only two touchdowns while our hard charging defense deflected a pass into the hands of Phil Harvin who galloped for a touchdown.

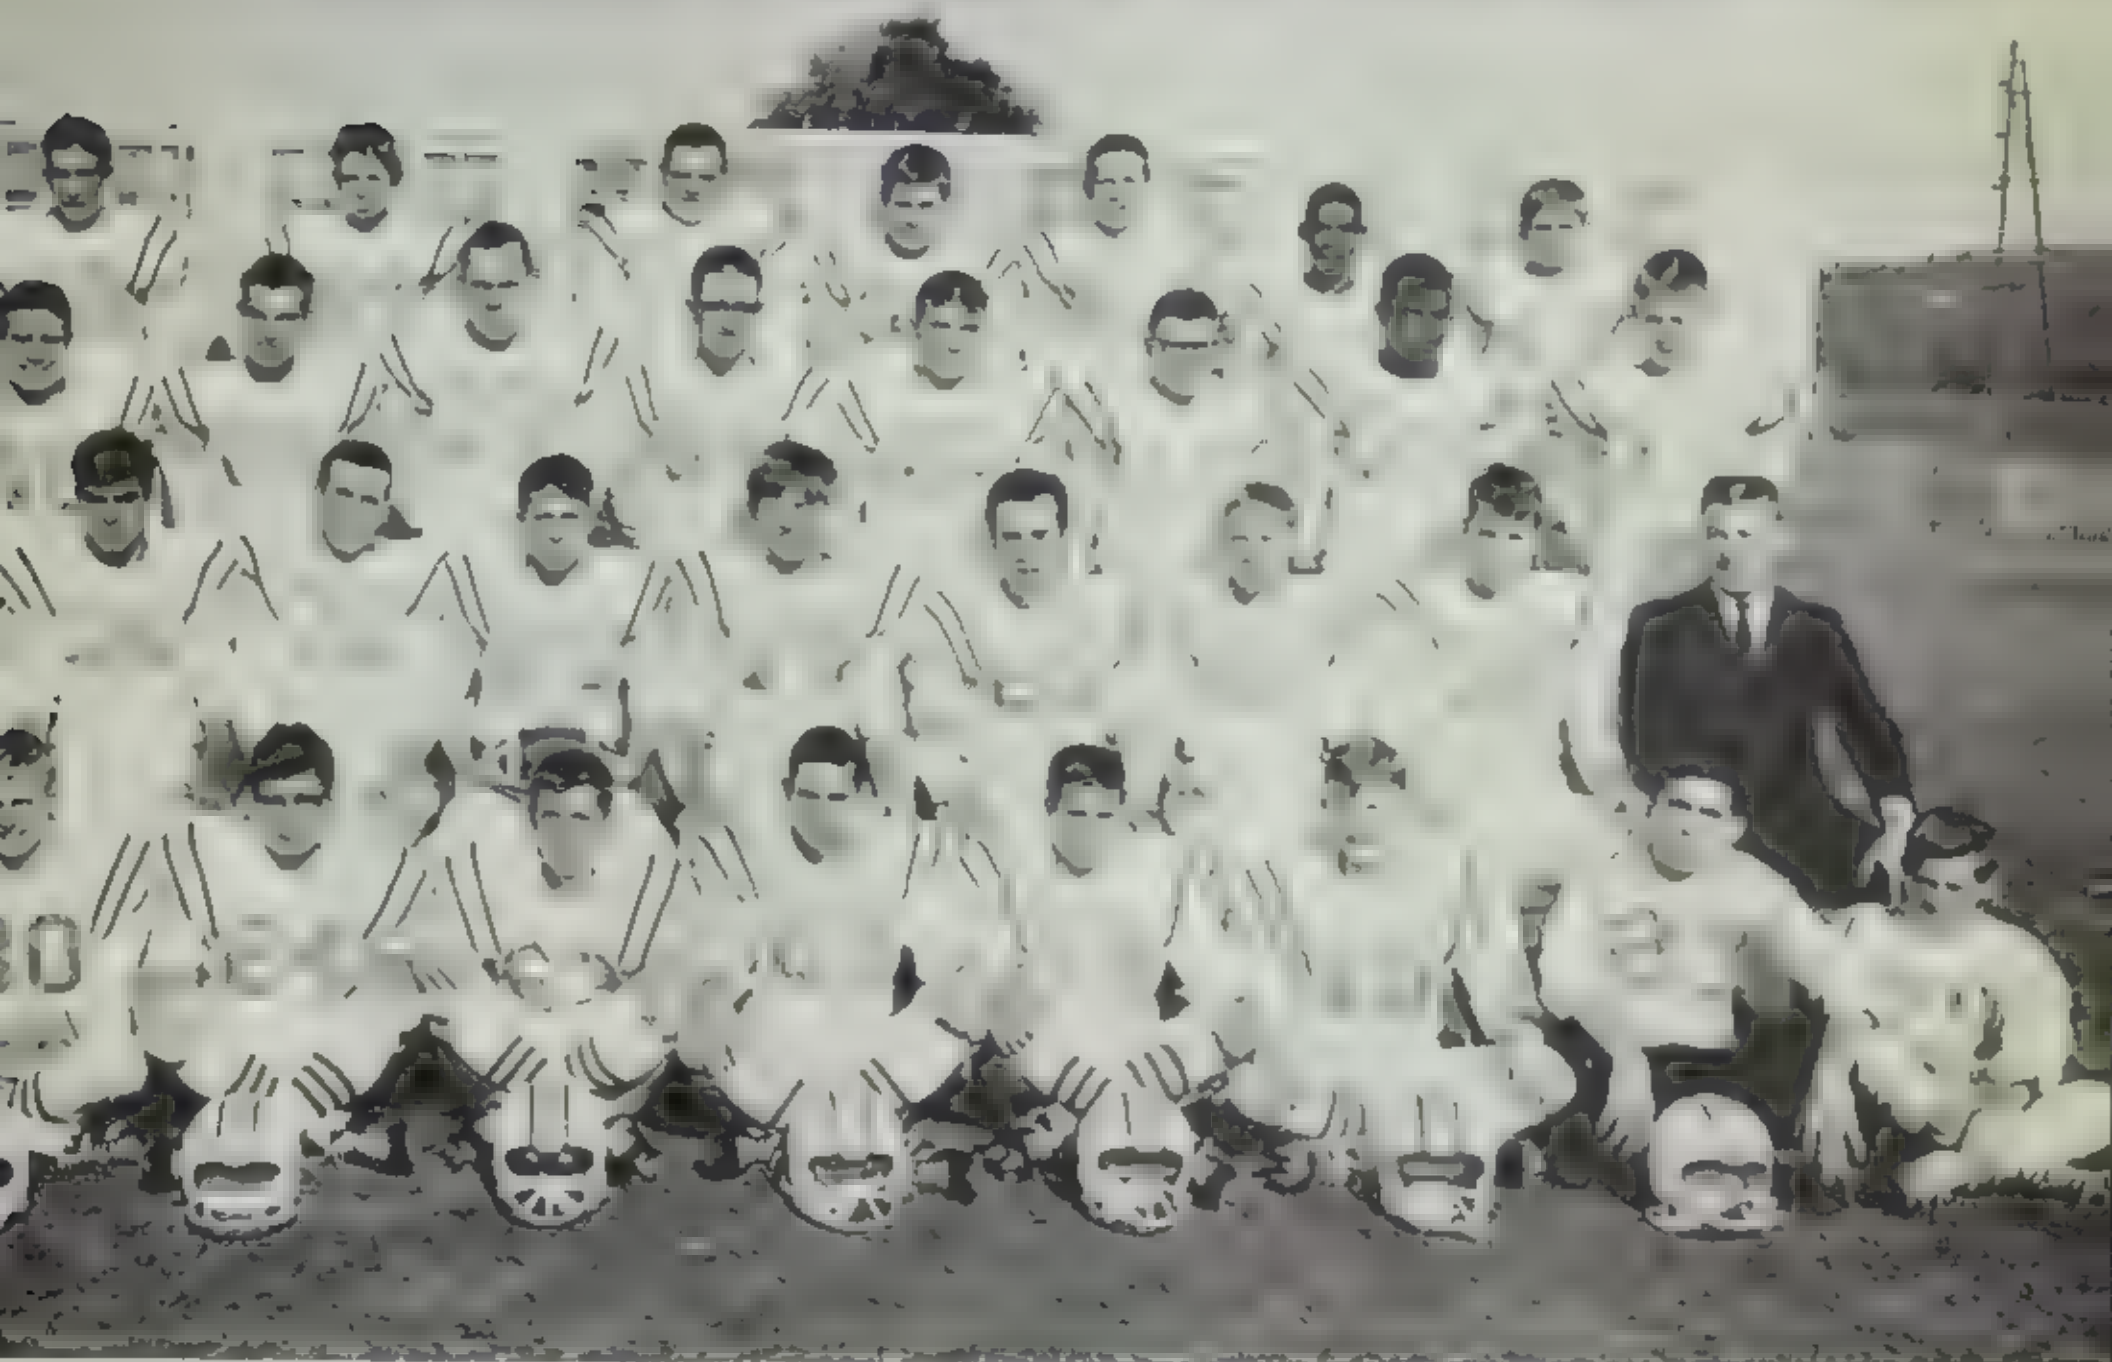

T. Durant, J. Kameron, G. Ballantz, G. Kinsey, B. Bensie, B. McKinstry, G. Hamilton, D. Fellows R. Row, B. Case; SEATED: Mr. Olsavsky, G. Supthin, J. Wilt, J. Harvin, L. Faulkner, J. Carman.

It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbled, or where the door of duty could have done better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives again and again because there is not effort without error and shortcoming; who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions; spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement; and who at the worst if he fails at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat.

"That's the best end of the referee you'd ever see!"

"Honest little boy, I'm really too old for you."

This year's seniors departure from organized football was as it should have been--a victory. Though their joy was boundless they all felt within them, a deep remorse. Never again will they strap on their helmets, or pull their game-worn jerseys over their shoulders again. They all will long forever, "for just one more big game."

Cheer Leading

Lassies

An Ode To A Letterman

You may be wondering why, of all places, did we place Harvin with these beautiful, vivacious cheerleading lassies. The story is told; when Joe makes his way through his final days at 'ol BHS, he wants to go in the most pleasant, comfortable, and delightful way possible...and that is, surrounded by a network of voluptuous CHEERLEADERS, shouting the praises of Joe's favorite pastime-- HIMSELF!

Basketball

Almost a factor of School Life

Basketball at BHS has blossomed into an almost necessary factor of school life. Why? Well--there seems to be something about the brand of basketball played at Brilliant that defies definition.

The coaches gestures, the noise, the wild hoop- ing and stomping of feet; all these lend to the at- mosphere created by a group of people confined to a small space. They whip themselves into a frenzy of cheering each time the ball swishes through the basket.

From December to February the Ohio Valley has it's ear to the hardwoods. Listening, hoping; the home team must win! But we at Brilliant are very seldom disappointed, our team plays to win.

The struggles of the basketball players are seldom realized. Every night after school is spent in the gym. "Get that fast break working," growls the coach. "You got to get up in the air to get that rebound." Night after night, week after week, they move up and down the rectangular playing court. All for that one night when the opponent won't be the reserves.

We at Brilliant are indeed fortunate to have such a fine coaching staff and such a wealth of material to choose from. Every high school and small college can have a basketball team, but we at Brilliant have a BASKETBALL TEAM.

During most of the time this year when the half time rolled around, we found ourselves lagging behind our opposition. Throughout most of the season it was a hard, up hill fight; however, on many occasions this past year, our "come from behind efforts" were nothing but sheer genius. Our scores may not indicate it and our overall record may not attest to it but our overall team performances was in many ways indicative of the brilliant and exciting basketball played here at our belabored hardwoods.

It Started With The Greeks

Track and field is the oldest type of sports competition. It was originated by the Greeks about the 8th Century B. C. Events have been found to replace the Chariot race, but the spirit of this early competition still remains. Young men still try to establish themselves as the fastest runner, the highest jumper and the strongest thrower. The team at Brilliant exemplifies high school teams throughout the area as it strives to preserve the spirit of the ancient competitor.

A few of the "stars" are zapping things up, while Jerry decides the whole thing is completely useless.
